Would be best to store the image in a database, is there a best practice? Many thanks A: One of the nicest ways of saving an image to a user's desktop is to do this: Save To Desktop If user opens your application, you'd want to display an 'Save to desktop' button on the first page. On clicking this, that image is saved to the user's desktop. A: You can do this in the following way. Save your Image/PDF/whatever in database. Create a thumbnail from the image Save thumbnail in an temporary folder (cache/tmp). When user closes your application, delete the file. Now the thumbnail will be available in user's desktop.
