PatientDB is a feature-rich and intuitive application that comes bundled with a wide variety of useful functions to provide an efficient method to record new individuals, schedule appointments, handle detailed and personal information about each patient, along with medical imaging, reports and billing features. Set up your profile and enter relevant information into the database. The interface is accessible yet cluttered, and there is no help wizard to guide you through the basics of the app. The layout is formed from a ribbon menu and divided into well-defined tabs for each feature. Make sure you have enough time on your hands, as getting familiarized with all the options may require a lot of time. To access the tool you have to input the default login credentials, which is "admin" for both the username and password. You can manage all the data (e.g. items, drug, insurance, service, medications, doctor, instruments) from the first tab, each coming with detailed and specialized fields that need to be filled in. Once entered, they become available for use for every individual. Maintain order between multiple persons and generate summaries. Patients can be added and searched from the second section, which requires both general and medical info, such as file number, age, full name, birth date, gender, address, along with medication, doctor, insurance number and diseases if it's the case. Plus, it's possible to insert a profile image, keep a complete record of prescriptions, anomalies, results, consultations and dentists, as well as capture videos and pictures of different body parts. In addition, the tool also comes with a
