California's Legislature is currently considering a bill to set low-tide current permit fees based on square footage of the water-exposed area of the structure. If approved, this would eliminate the huge variance in permit fees based on the size of the building. This is a good time to start remodeling your water-exposed areas. Expansion happens when the structure changes: a retaining wall, a roof or a new bay window. Some of these can be built using solid stone, and the result can be both a handsome improvement to your home and a wonderful piece of history. Also, current regulations permit up to 32' of freeboard on an outside structure. This is a tremendous amount

Officer Fajardo then sought the HRO's permission to search the vehicle.

He did so because he did not know the specific permission given by the HRO who signed the document, and he wanted to ensure that he complied with the HRO's request. In the course of searching the car, the officer found the two bags containing 62.2 grams of heroin and 592.8 grams of cocaine. The HRO consented to a search of the vehicle, and that search resulted in the seizure of two safes. The HRO added that he did not sign the consent form, but that the vehicle owner had filled out the form on his behalf. At a suppression hearing, the state court found that Officer Fajardo's testimony was credible and denied the motion to suppress. It ruled that Officer Fajardo's testimony established that he had a reasonable articulable suspicion to stop the vehicle, and it explained that the HROs "were not necessary for the validity of the search." The court also ruled that the HROs could not testify regarding the events surrounding the search of the vehicle because, under the circumstances, "[t]he mere act of having another person execute the written consent to search a vehicle does not mean the person is a deponent
