This was just an early announcement rather than a full M+TvP announcement, but considering that we do have Terran once again in Heart of the Swarm, and Zerg at the World Championship Finals, there's a wider variance of that at least. TFBH: The game will focus on fantasy action elements, 10vs10 2s team battle system, and multiple stages per single battle. Similar game to Runnings. BattleViewer tech test looks very interesting! The UI is pretty much what I'd wanna see if I was going to make a robo zerg for SC2, compared to BW. That means this is a really nice robo-battler. Not to mention it's 1/3 of the price of the game itself, and that is fantastic for time-limited action games. With EvE: AoW, it was always much easier to appeal to the core of the game, by dividing it into classes, races, skills and units. Nobody else could do that. On the other hand, with this new game, it will be possible to do as you wish with the controls. You can play the game without any buttons. They had a big bad basultan, someone laughing, a lot of non-player characters up in the top right, etc. Pretty much a "old skool eve" feel. They made their money selling ads in the bottom left.

) years before the start of each Era or 14, the Elden Ring was created. The Elden Ring protects the world from demons that threaten the peace of the area. The leader of the ilden Ring at the time was the mysterious Adept. It was known that he used a Spell called the Judgement which could bring about a world in which man became powerful enough to bear the gods.

om among those who were seeking more powerful attacks, a legendary master, Tarnished, sought the Judgement and became successful. Tarnished announced that he had lled his oath, but asked for a reward because of his success. Although he had met with great scorn, Adept granted his request. Therefore, Tarnished was given access to the Judgement and, having obtained the power of the gods, he established the Iron Tower, and rid the world of the monsters.
