Official Sniper Elite V2 Dedicated Server -Â .Since it's almost Christmas and you all know we have decided to destroy our own planet, here is a costume I had planned for the kids over the last few years. Made it from a plastic water bottle (hollow core), some plastic raffia twine and a metal button. These little girls have always wanted to have Christmas trees in their hair, so I made them one with tiny little ornaments that they could wear as extensions. If you are the parent of an older kid, you could also have them use safety pins as extensions. I made this as a last minute Halloween/Christmastime costume for them, from a place that made perfect one-off ideas (they could make the same one for a sports team). They love it. I've had several people ask how to make a giant Christmas tree skirt. This is the shirt I used to turn a regular t-shirt into a Christmas tree one. I simply cut the sleeves off a sweater, then washed it in warm water with a bit of detergent, then hung it up to dry (dryer vents work well, but of course you can use the regular dryer if that's what you have). Note: I found that if I added a few drops of fabric softener, it made it softer. Went to craft fair with my kids this weekend, along with a friend who also took her kid, so we got to play together for a couple of hours and have some fun, then I went home and went to bed. Ugh. Tomorrow we are going to a real toy store (not like the toy store at the mall). I have a couple of ideas of things they are going to want, but I'm looking for last-minute things we can make together from things we already have in the house, so I have to be
