Hyprotech is a leading technical consulting firm that provides process systems engineering, modeling and simulation,We often talk about a new technology that will replace the existing, but how much do we really know about the new technology? What is it really capable of doing? What impact will it have on our lives and society? And how can we be sure it's the right technology for our needs? In this post, I'll talk about the challenges associated with this new technology and consider how we might adapt and get the most out of it. The challenge A few years ago, when I started my research, people were worried about virtual reality (VR). Within the first few years of the technology's existence, people projected VR would take off and no one would want to do anything else. It was considered a niche technology — that once the technology improved, it's replacement was just a matter of time. However, as we look at where VR is now, I think it might have been more correct to say that technology would just be smarter. We still have the underlying challenge of being human, which VR does not address directly. What I mean is that we spend most of our e79caf774b
