We

have previously established that HIV-1-specific CD4+ human CTLs lyse HLA-matched, HIV-infected CD4+ T cells, a finding that has prompted the view that CD4 is a "potential major target" of HIV-1-induced CTLs. In this paper, we assess the role that CD4 may play in the protective activity of HIV-1-specific CTLs. We show that (a) the antiviral activity of HIV-1-specific CTLs is essentially equivalent to that of HIV-specific, HLA-matched MHC-restricted, CD8+ CTLs, and (b) the antiviral activity of CTLs toward HLA-matched, HIV-infected CD4+ T cells is considerably more limited than that of HLA-matched CD8+ CTLs. We conclude that CD4 can play a major role in HIV-specific CTLmediated immune defense, but cannot be viewed as an exclusive target of HIV-1-specific CTLs.Hiking It Up In The Mountains Share There's a wonderful club for mountain lovers called the Berner Oberland Club. Not to be confused with the Berneralpen Club, which is a club for skiing in the Alps. The OBC was originally a hiking club and they still welcome hikers by the carload with 28,000 members. I was fortunate to join OBC during my travels and with their generous hospitality it was easy to enjoy 22 hiking days and over 3,000 hiking miles in eight different countries. The organization has branches all over the world so it's easy to find a group hiking near your home. I stayed for a number of weeks, hiking close to Lake Titlis, the highest mountain in Switzerland. For more information on hiking on our Austria page. On a trip through Austria I hiked the Untersberg in

Their shows are wild, unpredictable and frequently take place in an alternate reality where our world has been turned on its head, or maybe it's just their state of mind. The Fox Lady takes a simple pop song and turns it into a twisted electro-funk nightmare. But before you say they're over the top, have they ever done anything else before? Find out by calling our hotline: (616) 923-6377 or visit our website: How do I add two KeyEvents using InputMap? I'd like to understand what method I should use to add two KeyEvents to an InputMap. My input map works fine with the one KeyEvent added, but I can't get the second to work. The second KeyEvent will invoke the JOptionPane message though. The code below is from within a class named KeyEventManager (I use the createInputMap method in another class, KeyMapper, which has its own InputMap to add all of the KeyEvents I want in the map).

keyMap.mapKey(KeyEvent.VK_RIGHT, KeyEvent.VK_S); keyMap.mapKey(KeyEvent.VK_UP, KeyEvent.VK_E); keyMap.mapKey(KeyEvent.VK_DOWN, KeyEvent.VK_E);
