Each option has a radio button, for example: Yes, No, Unsure. Each radio button takes a value of 0 or 1. Now say I want to set the properties of the newly created user. How can I check that there are values set for each radio button in the profile, since the values may be 0 or 1? Or is there a better way to do this? A: You can do it like this if(!empty($_POST['option1']) &&!empty($_POST['option2']) &&!empty($_POST['option3'])) { // do your stuff here } But, to answer your question, you can use a form like this to post the values Yes

An essential feature of the tumour-host interaction is that host immune effector mechanisms are often unable to eradicate tumours even when they are resistant to immunosuppressive environments or when tumours are inherently immunogenic. We have demonstrated that tumour cells can inhibit the immune response to themselves by several different mechanisms. We believe this occurs when tumour antigens enter the host response and the tumour cells present mimics of self, or'self-like' antigens. Tumour cell responses are in part dependent upon lymphocyte binding to tumour cells, and also on the nature of the tumour cell. This prevents tumour cells from presenting more typical extracellular antigens, and also induces resistance to conventional antibodies. Tumour cells may mimic self antigens by presenting tumour-specific antigens as self antigens, and non-self antigens as self antigens. Finally, it is possible that tumour-specific antigens are lost as a result of allelic exclusion or unknown mechanisms. We believe that the ability of tumour cells to evade immune responses can be profoundly influenced by tumour antigens, and that this process of evasion may be a fundamental problem in tumour progression.Baked Potato Breakfast Casserole I've never been a huge fan of hash browns or hash browns made into a casserole (though I like hash brown casseroles sometimes) — and they are an occasional side dish on the brunch menu at the Denver Headhouse. But one morning I was craving a baked potato breakfast casser
